

YEAR-END REVIEW HANDBOOK FOR EMPLOYEES

PxCell Program | GetSUCCESS

OBJECTIVES AND EXPECTATIONS OF THE DOCUMENT

The purpose of this handbook is to create an introductory guide for the Year-End Review approach. This includes:

- Roles and responsibilities
- Required skills and key activities
- Important mindset change implications and helpful guidelines to consider within the Year-End Review process

GETSUCCESS – AN OVERVIEW

GetSUCCESS is applicable from January 2023 onwards.

GetSUCCESS is about creating future high-performance. It focuses on employee achievements as well as future growth through continuous feedback and regular check-ins.

GetSUCCESS puts the power in your hands to define, pursue and achieve priorities that build your skills and drive performance.

By re-engineering our approach to Performance Management, employees at Capgemini can take ownership of their own development and make an impact on our business.

YEAR-END REVIEW OVERVIEW

The process encourages both the employee and manager to review the in-year contribution and skills maturity, together

The year-end is the time to pause and assess contributions, review progress made, and reflect on development. The process should not be considered a stand-alone milestone but is embedded into the wider GetSUCCESS process alongside priority setting, continuous feedback, and regular check-ins throughout the year.

APPROACH

- The Year-End Review process gives a holistic view of the employee, ensuring the year-end assessment reflects skills maturity and development, as well as in-year contribution- aligned to priorities
- The process starts with the employee reflecting on the past year, including progress on priorities, skills maturity and overall contribution – all captured with qualitative comments
- The assessment triggers next steps for the employee, including future learning, new assignments, development plans, and promotions

PURPOSE

- Reflect on the employee's achievements
- Review the progress made through the year
- Discuss areas for future development
- Assess in-year contribution and skills maturity
- Drive skills development, with a focus on tangible outputs and delivery

SUCCESS CRITERIA

- Honest and open conversation between the employee and people manager on the past year's progress
- A high-quality assessment using a range of collated feedback and leveraging the check-in discussions
- Both employee and people manager agree that a fair and transparent discussion has been conducted
- Review completed in time for follow-up processes (e.g. salary review, people review)

OUR NEW APPROACH TO DEVELOPING SKILLS

Skills maturity is an important component to an individual's performance. Therefore, the Year-End Review captures how employees have advanced their skillset across the year

At the end of the year, it is important for people managers and employees to approach the review with a focus on how their skills maturity is either enabling or hindering the employees' performance.

Both the people manager and employee should reflect on the past year: what skills has the employee committed to developing to enhance their performance? Consider the journey that the employee has been on. Where did their development journey start? How have their skills evolved? What is their future potential?

A new feature in the GetSUCCESS approach is about the employee's skills maturity. The objective of the skills maturity assessment is to prompt discussion around development and growth opportunities for the employee as we work towards becoming a skills-based organization. The modality of this assessment differs depending on the employee's grade.

IN-YEAR CONTRIBUTION: DELIVERING AGAINST YOUR PRIORITIES

In-year contribution assesses how you have delivered against business, development and assignment priorities across the year

An individual's in-year contribution is determined by how they have tangibly delivered against the priorities that were agreed and (if necessary) adjusted throughout the year. It's about delivery: how does the feedback they have received demonstrate the achievement of their priorities?

In pursuit of achieving priorities, an individual may have contributed more and delivered above and beyond what was expected of them. Have their priorities evolved as the year has progressed? Are there any new responsibilities they have taken on that wasn't part of the original scope?

The new feature in GetSUCCESS means you can mark all your activities as achievements, allowing you to capture your deliverables in the system to provide a comprehensive view of how you have delivered against your priorities at the Year-End Review.

YEAR-END REVIEW FOR GRADES A & B

A holistic view of the employee

For grades A and B, managers give one consolidated review at year-end which is driven by their skills maturity and in-year contribution. The value add for our Grade A and B colleagues is to gain guidance around their skills maturity as well as their contribution.

YEAR-END REVIEW FOR GRADES C-F

A holistic view of the employee

For grades C to F, managers give two stand-alone assessments at year-end for skills maturity and in-year contribution.

UNDERSTANDING THE SCALES: IN-YEAR CONTRIBUTION & SKILLS MATURITY IN GETSUCCESS

In-Year Contribution

Exceptional

Exceeds by far the standards expected for the role. Usually allocated for a very limited percentage of employees who demonstrate absolute top contribution and skills development.

Exceeding

Consistently delivers beyond expectations and is viewed as a role model in their position. Demonstrates high levels of effort, effectiveness and judgement.

Succeeding

Consistently demonstrates effective performance which is reflective of a fully qualified and experienced individual in position.

Needs improvement

Working towards gaining proficiency in role and focusing on skills development. Largely demonstrates satisfactory performance. Can apply to people who are new in role.

Off-Track

Not meeting expectations, remediation required. Not building skills required for role.

Not Enough Information

The person is still too new in the organization or has been absent for too long to be rated.

Skills Maturity

Mastery

Considered to be a visionary and market leader, resets direction internally and externally. Challenges the status-quo.

Expert

Viewed as an expert bringing both breadth and depth of information, able to act as an advisor to others. Locked on to innovations and changes in the market and brings them to Capgemini.

Proficient

Has a deep understanding and able to apply skills to both be fully effective in role, and to different situations as they arise.

Building

Progressing in development and proactive in building new skills required for today and the future.

Beginner

At the beginning for a learning journey. May be new to area and needs basic upskilling to be able to apply to their role.

Not Enough Information

The person is still too new in the organization or has been absent for too long to be rated.

REFLECTING ON THE PAST YEAR – FURTHER GUIDANCE

Adopting an objective view when reflecting on the past year contributes to an accurate self-assessment of your performance

Questions to consider when assessing your in-year contribution

- What value did I bring to the client?
- How is my relationship with the client and the team?
- What has been my main achievements this year?
- Did I contribute to other activities beyond my main assignment(s)?
- What feedback have I gathered, what more do I need and what do I need to share with my people manager?

Questions to consider when assessing your skills maturity

- Where am I in my skills maturity?
- Where do I stand in my career growth and in which areas do I want to develop?
- How have I progressed in my development this year?

Your client could be an internal colleague or team
